

The distances refer to the Ring Road (Highway no 1. except north of Lake Mývatn) and the shortest routes out from it unless otherwise mentioned. The main ring road no. 1 is 1.360 km.

The distances to the western fjords either refer to Brattabrekka and highway no 60 or highway no 61 over Steingrímsfjarðarheiði and Djúp depending on which route is shorter. Sometimes a quicker route is available in the summertime.

When travelling from Ísafjörður to Reykhólar it is 15 km shorter if the route over Þorskafjarðarheiði and Djúp is taken rather than the route via Barðastrandarsýsla. Routes from Ólafsfjörður to the west and from Siglufjörður to the east are considerably shorter if you choose to drive over Lágheiði instead of Öxnadalsheiði. You can shorten the distance from Öxarfjörður to Þistilfjörður is by 69 km if you chose to drive over Öxarfjarðarheiði. You can also shorten the route between Vopnafjörður and Hérað (Egilsstaðir) by 42 km by going over Hellisheiði in stead of Fjöllin. To drive over Öxi shortens the distance between Hérað (Egilsstaðir) and the area south of Berufjörður by 61 km.

The Ring Road goes through the tunnel underneath Hvalfjörður. The route around Hvalfjörður is about 42 km longer – it makes it about 60 km longer to go from Reykjavík to Akranes.
